For world leaders: that they listen and respond to the needs of their people, we pray to the Lord.

For all Americans around the world: that respect, peace and honour will be the overriding tone as Joe Biden is inaugurated into the presidency of the United States on January 20th, we pray to the Lord.

2ND SUNDAY OF ORDINARY TIME

Excerpt from a homily by Fr. Carl Kelly, OMI

Last week we finished the Christmas Season. Over the next six weeks we will be marking Ordinary Time. It is called Ordinary Time because it deals with the events of the 'ordinary' or public life of Jesus Christ. The events of the life of Jesus, His teachings and miracles will form the contents of the Gospels.

Today the readings direct our attention to calls and responses. The first reading, from the book of Samuel, tells us of the first time young Samuel ever heard about the Lord. Samuel was just a boy who knew nothing about God, and thought that the old man, Eli, was calling him. After three such calls, old Eli suggested an answer. He told the youngster to say: "Speak Lord, your servant is listening." The story continues, "Samuel grew up and the Lord was with him, and let no word of his fall to the ground." The young boy grew up to be the great Samuel, one of the most important persons in Old Testament history. This little story is a good example of what takes place when the Lord calls: His faithful respond. God called, and Samuel responded.

The central person in today's Gospel is Andrew. We do not know a lot about Andrew, but the things we do know are significant and important. The Gospels intend to show us who Andrew was, and what his role was. He was one who led others to Jesus. Andrew began by bringing his brother, Simon, who was to become the great St. Peter. The next time he is mentioned, Andrew brought the young lad with food, a meal which foreshadowed the great feast of the Eucharist, whereby Jesus would nourish his followers throughout history with His own Body and Blood. The third time, when Andrew brought the foreigners to Jesus, shows us that Jesus' message is intended for all, not only for the people of Israel. So Andrew's role was to help others respond to Jesus' call. Andrew had been a disciple of John the Baptist, and when John points out that Jesus is the Lamb of God, Andrew and the other person with him follow Jesus. Jesus turns around, and asks what it is they want. The first words John's Gospel attributes to Jesus are these words today, where he asks Andrew: "What are you looking for?" Andrew responds by asking where Jesus lived. When Jesus told him to come and see, Andrew stayed overnight, and the next morning, brought his brother, Simon, to the Lord.

The Gospel story of Andrew and Peter tells us that they heard the call of the Lord, and they responded. John, the Baptist, had begun the process. He recognized Jesus and pointed him out to Andrew. It was at the Baptism of Jesus that John recognized Jesus. Likewise it is at our baptism that we too receive the call of the Lord. But like little Samuel, most of us were too young and too inexperienced to recognize that call, let alone respond to it. Like Samuel, we, too, do not answer until some one else helps us. Samuel would not have known about the Lord if Eli had not told him to say: "Speak Lord, your servant is listening." Andrew could not have known Jesus, unless John the Baptist had said: "Look, here is the Lamb of God." Simon Peter would not have known Christ had not Andrew pointed him out, "We have found the Messiah." Each of the people in today's readings answered the call of God. Those are the examples given to us today, to help us to respond to the invitation of our God. Usually someone has to help us by telling us "we have met the Messiah" or "Speak Lord, your servant is listening." or "Behold the Lamb of God." Your presence here today is one of the ways you have answered God's call. When you listen attentively to the readings, when you hear the Word of God, you are answering the call. Sometimes, like Samuel, we do not recognize that it is God who is calling us. Someone has to remind us to say: "Speak Lord, your servant is listening." Your listening is your response. When you approach the altar to receive Communion, you are giving another response. The call given to each of us is personal, and the response we make is individual. As a community, we hear the call, and as a community, we respond. The Lord continues to call, and God's people continue to respond.

VOCATION REFLECTION

Encounters - A Journey of Faith by Jarek Pachocki, OMI
"In the Gospel this weekend, we witness the first meeting between Jesus and three of the men who later became his Apostles: Peter, Andrew and John. It's clear that they had a wonderful encounter. One meeting with Jesus, and they were captivated by Him. He gave them as much time as they wanted. They found Him warm, friendly, welcoming and very compassionate. They knew they had met a remarkable person, and an extraordinary friendship was born." Read the reflection here.

"Prayer at its highest is a two-way conversation and for me the most important part is listening to God's replies."
