For Pope Francis, that he may have the strength and good health to continue to spread his message of compassion, social justice and care for the environment in the face of more negative currents in the Church. We pray to the Lord.

For Indigenous leaders across the country, as they work to console their communities, to alleviate the pain caused by the unmarked burial sites at residential schools and to find a path towards healing and recovery. We pray to the Lord.

For our government leaders and for all Canadians, that we may come to recognize that we too have a role to play in the healing of our Indigenous brothers and sisters, and that we may each, in our own way, take positive steps to contribute to the reconciliation process. We pray to the Lord.

For the many people who are suffering from war, famine, climate extremes and disasters, that they receive the support they need to establish a stable life. We pray to the Lord.

14TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Excerpt from a homily by Fr. Carl Kelly, OMI

The story of Jesus' rejection in his own town is a story that most of us can identify with. Often our own families fail to listen to the wisdom and encouragement we offer, because they are too familiar with us. Listen to the grumbling of the people in Jesus' hometown when he spoke to them "What is this wisdom that has been given to him?" And the scriptures go on to say that they took offense at him, and that, as result, Jesus was not able to do any miracles there. Yes, Jesus was rejected by his own because his own thought that they knew him. The story of Jesus' rejection by his villagers is also a story about how we ignore and reject God. The road to spiritual wholeness is not travelled by exercising our own human powers, but rather by acknowledging our human weaknesses and, in that weakness, allowing God to exercise his power in us. Until we admit our weakness, until we stop being afraid of them, we can't find the help we need. The Apostle Paul had what he called a thorn in the flesh, and three times he prayed that this weakness might be removed. On the third occasion when Paul prayed, God answered him and said, "My grace is sufficient for you for my power is made perfect in weakness." Paul's response to this statement is a most beautiful one. He said "Therefore I will boast all the more gladly about my weaknesses that Christ's power may rest on me. For the sake of Christ, then, I am content with weaknesses, insults and hardships. For when I am weak, then I am strong." To the world this is nonsense. Power and strength are worshiped by most people, and weakness is despised above all things. The world teaches us to conceal our vulnerability, lest we be hurt, and it teaches us to hide our weakness. The world teaches us that we can help ourselves, that we can do what we need to do on our own. This is not the wisdom of God. Our weaknesses and our tribulations are not of themselves a blessing, they are real problems for us. But, when we acknowledge our weaknesses and our needs, and turn to God and ask for his help, then something profound happens, and we discover that God's grace is sufficient for us. God's power is made perfect in our weakness, and almost always in ways we do not expect. When I am weak, then I am strong. If the truth be known, we are weak in many ways, ways that all too often we are afraid to admit, because we fear that we will be scorned or taken advantage of somehow. But that is not what need happen. What happens is that God's power comes to us and helps us in the way that we need help. Our weakness may remain, as Paul's thorn remained, but God's power inhabits it and turns it to strength for us. Strength for us to do what we, as human beings and as followers of Christ, are meant to do and in fact need to do, if we are to inherit the joy, the love, and indeed the very life, that God wants to bestow upon us.

The story is told about how one day a small boy was trying to lift a stone much too heavy for him. His father walked by and seeing his struggles said "Are you using all your strength?" The boy said that indeed he was. But the father replied "No son, you aren't, for you haven't asked me." How much haven't we asked God about? A part of our strength, the greater part, comes from our relationship to God, the God who is able and willing to help us. But first we realize our need for God, and then we must ask God to take control. Doing our best as Christians always includes asking God to help us do what we are trying to do. God makes his power perfect in weakness, for it is there that God is able to do for us what we, in our strength, do not let God do.

VOCATION REFLECTION

"Prophets? No Thanks!" by Richard Beaudette, OMI
Who of us feels competent to speak God's Word in a way that calls and challenges others to conversion? Of course, as Paul would remind us, our baptismal call to be prophetic is not something that we can do on our own. Rather than offering a life of comfort and safety, this baptismal call puts great expectations on us: expectations that can only be met when we recognize our individual weakness and open ourselves to the indwelling of the Spirit and the power of Christ dwelling in us and personified in the Christian community. Read the reflection here.

"I asked God for strength, that I might achieve. I was made weak, that I might learn humbly how to obey. I asked for health, that I might do greater things. I was given infirmity, that I might do better things. I asked for riches, that I might be happy. I was given poverty, that I might be wise. I asked for power, that I might have the praise of men. I was given weakness, that I might feel the need of God. I asked for all things, that I might enjoy life. I was given life, that I might enjoy all things. I got nothing that I asked for – but everything I had hoped for. Almost despite myself, my unspoken prayers were answered. I am, among all men, most richly blessed."
